

Top Ten Reasons to be a Destination ImagiNation[®] Team Manager

- Minimal qualifications (can you spell DI?).
- Party conversations become a breeze...you'll always have an answer to "What's new with you?"
- Keeping up with your team keeps you forever young (...or gives your hair those distinguished silver highlights).
- "Destination ImagiNation[®] Team Manager" looks good on resume.
- "No Interference" rule means "It's not your job to solve the Challenge".
- Team managing expands your shopping horizons... hardware stores take on a whole new look.
- You have the opportunity to travel with lots of children to exotic locations ... by van and bus.
- Destination ImagiNation[®] expands your stockpile of useful junk.
- Team materials hide nasty scratches on your dining table.
- Destination ImagiNation[®] cures the mid-winter blues. Time flies when you're having fun!

Bonus Reasons to be a Destination ImagiNation[®] Team Manager

- Opportunity to teach real-world life-long skills to a bunch of kids you'll learn to love.
- The satisfaction of seeing a bunch of disorganized kids come together as a team to create a unique solution that they can be proud of.
- They'll rub off on you and you'll be more creative as well.

You can have a tremendous impact on a great bunch of kids

Without volunteer Team Managers, there can be no teams

Courtesy of Victor Tom, Massachusetts DI